BRETT YOUNG

ON THE COVER

Named as the only country act on Shazam's "Emerging Artists of 2017," Brett Young has captured the hearts of fans everywhere through his honest lyrics and West Coast-meets-Southern sound, aptly dubbed "Caliville" style. "Destined for mass appeal" (Rolling Stone Country), the ACM New Male Vocalist of the Year nominee released his self-titled, debut album on BMLG Records earlier this year. The album was recorded in Nashville with producer Dann Huff (Keith Urban, Thomas Rhett, Steven Tyler) and features 11 of the 12 tracks co-written by Young, including his current single "Like I Loved You" and the No. 1 Gold-certified debut "Sleep Without You." His follow-up single, the Billboard and Mediabase No. 1 hit "In Case You Didn't Know," solidified Young as the first country artist to hit the Platinum-certification sales mark with a song released in 2017. The video was No. 1 on Vevo's country chart for six consecutive weeks and is currently the only country song on Vevo's list of Top 10 Videos of 2017. "In Case You Didn't Know" is currently nominated for a Teen Choice Award for Choice Country Song and it was also nominated for Breakthrough Video of the Year at the 2017 CMT Music Awards. Young was also nominated for two Association of Independent Music Publisher (AIMP) Awards for Artist-Writer of the Year and Song of the Year for "Sleep Without You." In addition to his own headlining dates, the California native is currently on the road with Lady Antebellum's You Look Good World Tour 2017 after joining Luke Bryan's Kill The Lights Tour earlier this year.
