

(8.2.17) <http://www.npr.org/podcasts/510051/here-x26-now>

In hour one of Here & Now's Aug. 2, 2017 full broadcast, we talk with country musician Brett Young about his dramatic rise as a singer, and how a baseball injury in college turned his focus toward music. Also, we round up the latest news from Washington with NPR's Geoff Bennett, including President Trump and two Republican senators announcing a plan to cut legal immigration into the United States. Plus we dive into the perspective-changing world of competitive tree climbing, and our resident chef Kathy Gunst shares slow-grilling secrets and recipes you can use to help plan your next barbecue.