You might find Dierks Bentley somewhere on a beach – or he could also pop up in Knoxville, Tennessee, for a little crowd surfing.

The singer/pilot delighted fans in the area when he flew into town for a surprise, free concert at the University of Tennessee campus. It was all filmed for an episode of CMT: Instant Jam, airing May 28 at 9 p.m. ET.

The one-hour special shows thousands of fans swarming the stage as Bentley, 40, performs his latest hit "Somewhere on a Beach," as well as previous hits including "I Hold On," "Free and Easy," and "Drunk on a Plane."

Bentley's eighth studio album, Black, is out Friday.
