

Esquire

(6.8.19)- <https://www.esquire.com/entertainment/music/a27701193/music-festivals-2019-lineup/>

10 CAN'T MISS 2019 MUSIC FESTIVALS—AND WHY THEY STAND OUT AMONG THE REST

In a time of copycat lineup posters. These are the unique fests worth the time and money.

Each year, it seems like the major music festival posters get more and more similar. Case in point for 2019: all three headliners for Coachella— Childish Gambino, Tame Impala, Ariana Grande—are each also atop the Lollapalooza schedule. Along with that, Gambino also helms one night at Bonnaroo, Outside Lands and Austin City Limits. He is joined at the latter by Tame Impala, who he first overlapped with at Coachella on this year's run.

But in a sea of sameness, there are still a few outposts hanging on to their weirdo roots. Here are the 10 festivals still worth hitting in 2019.

Seven Peaks

August 30-September 1

Buena Vista, CO

BUY TICKETS

Dierks Bentley's Seven Peaks does it all: offers a stunning location for shows, pairs it with a killer lineup— 2019's outing pairs headliners Luke Bryan and Travis Tritt with Bentley along with sets from Maren Morris, Jon

Pardi, Caylee Hammack, Ryan Hurd, and more—and slathers on the extracurriculars. (2018 witnessed daily beach parties, white water rafting, and a pop-up Whiskey Row, which is Bentley's gastropub chain.)