First Country: New Music From LANCO, Kelleigh Bannen, Lady Antebellum & More

LANCO, “What I See” and “Old Camaro”

LANCO surprised fans by dropping two brand new tracks today that showcase the band’s versatility. Reflective new single “What I See” highlights frontman Brandon Lancaster’s soothing vocals filled with nostalgic and vivid imagery while the feel-good “Old Camaro” kicks things up a notch. Both songs mark the follow-up to the band’s debut album Hallelujah Nights.

"We had the idea for 'What I See' after our bus picked us up in this little random parking lot with just a rundown bar and restaurant," Lancaster said in a statement. "To us, it might have been insignificant as we were just passing through, but to someone, it could be a landmark. This could be the place where someone spent all their Friday nights or had their first fender-bender in high school. We started talking about all our upbringings, and realized that we all have those places in our own towns that meant something to us whether it's the football field or just an exit sign. Though insignificant to most, they are part of our stories, so this song shines a light on the idea that 'there's more than meets the eye.'"
