

DISCLAIMER: Caylee Hammack Takes The Lead

The ladies are gettin' it done, today.

All of our Disc of the Day contenders come from female artists. For bounce with flounce, we have RaeLynn. For aching survival, there's Caylee Hammack. For poetic artistry and meditation, we present Gretchen Peters. For topical feminism, check out Tenille Townes. All of them are essential listening experiences. Since she is the newest kid on the block, I'm giving Caylee Hammack the nod.

There's only one true newcomer here. That's Payton Smith, who earns himself a DisCOVERY Award.

TUCKER BEATHARD/You Would Think

Writers: Tucker Beathard/Casey Beathard/Donovan Woods; Producer: Jordan Rigby/Ryan Tyndell/Tucker Beathard; Publisher: none listed; Warner

– I remain a big fan. This hurtin' tune features a brightly mixed lead vocal performance backed by a crunchy audio concoction that shudders and crashes in all the right places. With every release, this fellow sounds more and more talented.
