The MixtapE! Presents Troye Sivan, Lindsay Lohan and More New Music Musts

New music Fridays are a thrilling, yet daunting prospect for any music lover.

It's essentially a weekly holiday where fan-favorite artists and fresh faces alike drop their latest offerings for all the world to hear, flooding streaming services and digital retailers with an onslaught of aural goodies. But who has the time to sit there and listen to everything before updating their playlists? There's just too much good stuff! (And, if we're being honest, usually a few stinkers, too.)

As it turns out, we do. Welcome to The MixtapE!

Another week down, friends. And while we begin to transition from work mode to weekend mode all while largely staying in place, thanks to the continued social distancing measures that ask everyone to stay at home amid the COVID-19 crisis, there's nothing like a good soundtrack to help us forget about the world, our responsibilities and, most importantly, our worries—even for just a few brief minutes. With that in mind, we've listened to (almost) all the new music the week has to offer and returned in hand with our picks for the best of the best. So get yourself ready to dance it out. Enjoy and, as always, stay safe.

Thomas Rhett feat. Reba McEntire, Hillary Scott, Chris Tomlin and Keith Urban — "Be a Light":

Thomas calls on a few of his famous friends for this inspirational and uplifting track that stands to do a lot of good now that it's out in the world. "I wrote 'Be A Light' last year as a way to process negativity and sadness I was seeing in the world," he said in a press release announcing the track. "Now, as I sit in my home with my family on my 30th Birthday, we are in the middle of a world-wide pandemic affecting every single human on earth, all while our town of Nashville is still healing from devastating tornadoes that destroyed so much of our city less than one month ago. But, among the wreckage, I see us come together in ways I never dreamed possible. I knew in my heart this was the time to share this message with the world and our community. The voices who join me on this track are some of the brightest lights I know. I hope this song serves as a reminder that we are all in this together." What's more, all proceeds from the track will be donated to the MusiCares COVID-19 Relief Fund.
