Travis Denning's debut EP Beer's Better Cold, is out today. The project's six tracks, five of which Denning co-wrote, were produced by Jeremy Stover and include Denning's first Top 5- and-climbing single "After A Few," the sleek anthem about a couple whose passion could erupt at any moment.

Denning will celebrate the project's release this week with an acoustic performance on The Outdoor Channel tonight at 7 p.m. ET as part of their "Country Outdoors LIVE" series, and as a guest on CMT's "Hot 20 Countdown" tomorrow at 8 a.m. ET. Denning marked his debut EP release last night with a full-band performance of the collection live streamed to fans at home.

He'll also be performing and sharing more details about the project across multiple platforms throughout the week including Taste Of Country's "Happy Hour" today (May 15), Facebook Live with Country Rebel on May 18, Instagram Live on Country NOW on May 19, American Songwriter's "Behind The Mic" on May 20, Facebook live with One Country on May 21, an Instagram live with Sounds Like Nashville on May 22, and more.

"I'm so pumped to finally have this music out," said Denning. "We've poured a lot of passion, hours and life into these songs. I hope when people turn these songs up they hear that."
